

STORMSWEPT WASHTENAW COUNTY SUNDAY EVENING

WIND UPROOTED MONSTER TREES

Roofs of Houses and Barns Blown Off and Much Live Stock Killed—One Man Killed by Live Wire in Ypsilanti and Wife Was Seriously Burned—Normal City Visited by Cyclone

The hardest windstorm since the Ypsilanti cyclone, April 12, 1893, swept across the northeastern part of the county last night, flattening out barns, orchards and telephone poles.

The blow came along out of the northwest about 8 o'clock and htd gone on its way rejoicing before 10. Behind it one man was dead, two cities were in more or less complete darkness, and the streets and roads were filled with fallen trees, vagrant roofs and stray barns.

The one casualty so far reported occurred in Ypsilanti when Jacob Brodie of that city started across South Huron street during a lull and ran into a live wire dangling in the dark. He was instantly killed.

There were a number of narrow escapes. In spite of the fact that thunder was rolling an hour before the storm broke 300 canoeists started bravely up the Huron.

When the wind whooped down with the slashing rain those of them that could race the white caps back to Tessmer's boat house. There the waves dashing against the landing nearly capsized the canoes, but fortunately there were no upsets. It was a wet, but good natured crowd that jammed the boat house till the storm passed over. Many of the canoeists were unable to get back to the landing. A number of them abandoned their canoes at the water works and others pulled them up on the bank and crawled under them. During the worst of the storm an empty canoe caused the report to spread that Roy Francis, '12 engineer, Cortland, N. Y., and the girl he had taken out had been drowned. Francis is a member of the New York club, 803 South State, and the girl is a member of a sorority. The sorority girls and the club boys were notified and a search was promptly instituted. Francis and the girl walked in some time after midnight, their canoe having gotten away from them when they scrambled out.

Over at Ypsilanti, where the storm was really worse than it was in this city, about 60 canoeists started out on the river, but all managed to get off safely before the storm broke.

The D. U. R. and the Michigan Central both suffered from the wrecking of the power and telegraph wires. Miles of wire between Ypsi and Wayne on the D. U. R. went down before the wind and the falling trees and the line was still blocked at noon today. No cars could get through from Detroit this morning. West of Ypsilanti the service was upset during the storm but was resumed this morning. Falling trees in Ypsilanti blocked the line as far out as the Normal college, but cars were operated from there to Ann Arbor. Wire troubles during the storm held up the car leaving Ypsilanti at 8:45 last night so that it did not reach this city until midnight. West of Ann Arbor the storm also interfered with the service, but cars were able to get through without excessive delay. The blockade between Wayne and Ypsilanti held up the Jackson limited due in Jackson at midnight so that at 8:30 this morning the car was still at Canton east of Wayne. The Michigan Central telegraph wires were knocked galley west and the road was able to operate only by making the block signals do the work of protecting the trains.

In this city the wind blew down many of the wires of the Eastern Michigan Edison company grounding the circuits and temporarily putting out the lights. Church services were going on during the storm and in a number of churches the congregations had to sit in the dark. Rev. E. B. Simkin at the Presbyterian church finished his sermon in the dark. The storm also caught the congregations trying to get home and more than one devout member needed all the plect on tap to compensate for wet feet and drenched finery.

Signs were blown loose and trees broken all over the city. One of the maple trees on the court house lawn was uprooted. A big oak in an alley back of Russell's on Fifth avenue went down, smashing an electric light pole and crashing through a barn underneath. An electric wire on South State street just below Packard broke and dangled in the gutter with an accompanying display of fireworks that put a sane Fourth to shame. School Commissioner Evan Essery took a lantern and went out to investigate but decided that the best way to handle the thing was to let it alone. He did.

North of this city and to the north-eastward in Northfield, Salem and Superior the storm seemed even more severe in its effects than here. In fact it seemed to come down from the northwest and to move across the upper corner of the county toward the southeast. The path of its greatest fury includes Whitmore Lake, Dixboro and Ypsilanti. From the observatory in this city it was apparent that the body of the storm was rolling to the north of Ann Arbor. Black clouds pierced with vivid lightning moved across the hills beyond the Huron. The highest velocity attained as recorded by the instruments at the observatory was 50 miles an hour. As the main part of the storm passed to the northward and as the damage done in its path was more severe than that suffered here it seems likely that the velocity of the wind under the storm center was close to 70 miles an hour. Whole orchards were uprooted, barns flattened out like houses of

Hints on How to Prepare for your Vacation

IF ANKLE TICKLES YOUR HEAD'S CRACKED.

St. Louis, June 5.—If your ankle tickles and your big toe turns upward and the other toes spread outward your skull is fractured, says Dr. C. G. Chaddock, a member of the visiting staff at the city hospital, who says he has made the experiment in 275 cases and has not failed once.

If your skull is intact the tickling of the ankle will cause your toes to turn downward and draw close together. Dr. Chaddock says the spot on the ankle that will reveal skull fracture is a half inch above the sole of the foot on the inside of the ankle.

The spot is closely connected with the brain by a lesion in the central motor track, Dr. Chaddock says.

SANG "THE HOLY CITY" AS THUNDER ROARED

In the midst of the most terrific storm in years, the vested chorus choir of the First Methodist church last night gave Gaul's sacred cantata, "The Holy City," with magnificent effect.

Ralston Hayden, who is the bass soloist of the church, and who sang the bass solos in the work, showed his self possession when he gave the air for the bass, "Thus saith the Lord," while the storm was at its worst and the electric lights were off a good share of the time. Neither Mr. Hayden nor the organist, Selden S. Dickinson, missed a note, and Mr. Hayden has probably never sung better. His voice is a very broad and remarkably powerful one, of excellent timbre. He uses it with great intelligence, and he sang the air with seriousness of purpose and strength of interpretation. The other air, which Mr. Hayden gave with equal effectiveness, was "And I heard the voice of harpers," sung with a chorus of treble and contralto voices. Mrs. Jessie Dicken Reed, contralto, sang the well known solo, "Eye Hath Not Seen," very beautifully. Her work is always of a superior order, for not only has her voice been well schooled but the deep feeling with which she sings impresses her hearers powerfully.

Charles Rogers, who sang the tenor part in the quartet, gave the principal air for the tenor, "My Soul is Athirst for God." Possessed of a peculiarly sweet tenor voice which he uses naturally and freely, Mr. Rogers produced a very good impression. His voice is rather light and of somewhat short range but it was adequate for the demands the solo placed upon it.

So much has previously been said of the singing of Miss Ada Grace Johnson, who for several years has held the position of soprano soloist in this church, that it seems unnecessary to add anything. Miss Johnson is a singer who does her work equally well at all times. She is sure and her singing is always artistic and her voice always beautiful. Her principal solo was the air, "These are they which came out of great tribulation." The choir, which has been under Mrs. Reed's direction for several years, has been carefully and ably drilled by her, and did good work throughout. The shading and climatic building was exceptionally good, all the attacks firm and sure, and in fact from every choral standpoint practically no fault could be found. The sopranos produced an especially full round tone, and it is little wonder that they did, for that section of the chorus contains a great many of the best voices in the city.

Mrs. Reed inspires the chorus to do its very best and she is satisfied with nothing short of perfection. The organist, Selden S. Dickinson, is one of the most satisfactory, ever in that position in the church. He is a thorough musician and an accompanist of unusual ability. Last night was the last appearance of the choir for the year.

The singers who composed the chorus last night were: Sopranos—Mildred Bairchus, Beatrice Bradley, Nina Davison, Laura Koch, Minto McGregor, Edna McLarren, Lucile Ramsdell, Elizabeth Tribble. Altos—Marquita Breuckmann, Augusta Darling, Alice Densmore, Lottie Gilpin, Elizabeth Hopper, Katherine Stalker, Inez Wisdom.

Tenors—Robert Baker, Earl Crossman, Shirley Phil, Burton Grim, William Legg, Otto Stahl.

Basses—Bruce Bromley, Louis Cogswell, Allen Dudley, Otto Fuebner, Russell Hussey, Edward Kemp, James Wood.

SMALL CYCLONE AT YPSILANTI

Ypsilanti, June 5.—One fatality occurred in Ypsilanti, where the storm was terrific and where hundreds of dollars' worth of damage was done. Jake Brodie of South Huron street, started to go across the street to a small store in the midst of the storm and a live electric light wire struck him on the forehead killing him instantly.

Mrs. Brodie became alarmed at the long absence of her husband and went out to find him. She stumbled over the body of her husband lying in the road, and she was also struck by a live wire and severely burned. She is doing well today and it is believed that she will live.

Shade trees and telephone poles are down all over Ypsilanti and some of the streets are absolutely impassable for teams. Seven immense shade trees in L. H. Jones' yard were uprooted, and part of the roof on his house was ripped off.

At the Lewis Deor Manufacturing company's plant 30 feet of the roof was blown off and the west end of the lumber store rooms demolished. The roof on the factory of the Ypsilanti Hay Press company was found a block away from the building, nearly every window at the plant was broken and many doors blown in.

The Michigan Ladder company suffered some damage. The big smoke stack was blown over and the lumber building leveled.

The roof on the new boiler house on the Normal campus was torn off and the damage will amount to considerable. The building is not quite completed. One of the storm houses on the campus was smashed into kindling wood.

Northeast of Ypsilanti the storm was severe. One of the barns on the Swift fruit farm was blown six inches from its foundation and on

WILSON LAUGHS AT THE STATEMENT FROM COX

New Jersey Doesn't Take Seriously the Statement That Ohio Democrats Want Him as Running Mate for Governor Harmon—He Prefers the Presidency, Thank you

Washington, June 5.—From Ohio Gov. Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey heard that he would make an excellent vice presidential candidate and would be most acceptable as a Democratic running mate with Governor Harmon in 1912. This message was delivered to Governor Wilson here today by Representative James Cox of Dayton.

Cox was the only member of the Ohio delegation to call on the New Jersey executive and active presidential aspirant. Governor Wilson carefully looked over Representative Cox before inquiring if he expressed the sentiment of the Democrats of Ohio. Cox was emphatic with his "eyes," whereupon Governor Wilson laughed heartily. He seemed to think it an excellent joke.

"Governor Harmon is a mighty nice man and a good Democrat," said Governor Wilson. "Give him my regards when you see him." That is all he had to say concerning Governor Harmon, regarded in Washington as one of the three leading possibilities for the Democratic nomination.

Winding up a 9,000 mile trip on which his presidential prospects constantly were discussed Governor Wilson made Washington his last stopping place. Tonight he is on his way back to New Jersey after meeting close to 100 Democratic congressmen from all sections of the country today.

The most important feature of the Wilson visit was his meeting with Speaker Champ Clark, who for months has seen the White House dancing before his own eyes. Governor Wilson emphatically endorsed the up to date course of the house of representatives on all tariff matters and what, just now, is more to the point he approved of the decision of the Democratic caucus to place a small revenue tariff on wool.

Governor Wilson hedged a little in this endorsement. He declared that under different circumstances it might have been better to have placed wool on the free list and indirectly he approved of the resolution which stated that the Democrats had not abandoned its principles and was offered solely to appease the free wool Democrats. Nevertheless Speaker Champ Clark got what, it is understood he went after when he called on Governor Wilson.

Clark is apprehensive of the Bryan strength at the next national convention. Governor Wilson is now in the same boat with Clark. For Wilson has placed himself on record as approving that which Bryan has characterized as political dishonesty which "will not fool the people." And Speaker Clark, so it is whispered, started for the hotel to call on Governor Wilson with just that object in view. Governor Harmon has been known all along as a tariff revenue Democrat. It is known that he thoroughly approves as a matter of political belief the action taken by the caucus on the wool question.

NEOPHYTES WILL TREAD BURNING SANDS THURSDAY

On Thursday evening of this week Zal-Gaz grotto, M. O. V. P. E. R., will initiate a class of 25 candidates, thus completing its charter membership.

The grotto has had a wonderful growth since it was organized in this city. As has been stated the organization is one to which only Masons may belong, and is similar in its purposes to the Shrine. The parent organization was launched in Hamilton, N. Y., about 20 years ago, by a little band of Masons, and since that time it has been growing by leaps and bounds. Its growth, however, has been confined almost exclusively to the east. Within the past two years however, it has been taken up by Masons of the middle west, and there are large grottos in both Cleveland and Columbus, O.

Zal-gaz grotto is the first organized in the state of Michigan, but since its inception inquiries from various parts of the state indicate that others will be speedily formed. Detroit Masons are contemplating the formation of a grotto within a very short time, and the time is not far distant when they will be scattered all over the state.

Organized early in the spring the local grotto has almost secured its required charter list, and it is expected that the candidates initiated on Thursday evening will make the list complete. Grand Master Dillon of the Michigan grand lodge of Masons is a life member of Zal-Gaz grotto.

Invitations are being sent to members of the grotto today. Each member should remember that he must wear his fez and bring his membership card in order to secure admission. Supper will be served to the members and candidates at the Masonic temple at 6 o'clock, and the work will start at 7:30 sharp.

Expense for this

This places the three recognized leading Democratic aspirants for the presidential nomination squarely at variance with Bryan.

45 CANDIDATES ARE INITIATED

Forty-five candidates were initiated into the local council of Knights of Columbus at the session held Sunday afternoon and evening in Woodman hall.

Representatives from the councils at Detroit, Jackson, Chelsea and Dexter were present and Thomas A. Lawler and his staff from Lansing assisted Ann Arbor and Jackson in giving the work. Supper was served in the K. C. rooms and over 200 sat down at the tables. After supper Thomas A. Kearney presided as toastmaster and speeches were made by M. J. Cavanaugh, Rev. Fr. Doyle of Jackson, Prof. McLaughlin, and Rev. Fr. Fischer of Manchester.

FIXES PRICE ON THE WATER PLANT

Mayor Walz Saturday night received the long awaited communication from the Ann Arbor Water company placing a price on its plant.

The communication will be referred to the special water committee which will meet this evening before council, and the aldermen will probably be asked to authorize the employment of experts and specialists to appraise the plant. Mayor Walz refuses to make public the figures named by the officials of the water company until after the matter has been acted upon by the special committee. Dr. A. K. Hale, secretary of the company also refuses to make them public. It is understood that the price named covers the bonded indebtedness of the company.

KNIGHTS TEMPLAR CONCLAVE

There will be a regular conclave of Ann Arbor commandery, No. 13, Knights Templar, Tuesday evening, June 6, at 7:30. Final arrangements for the pilgrimage to Saginaw will be made at this meeting. The commandery will be opened in full form by the knights selected to take part in the opening of the grand commandery.

FOUR LIVES LOST IN SUNDAY'S BIG STORM

Detroit, June 5.—At least four lives were lost as a result of the storm which swept Michigan last night. The wires are down in many directions and reports of damage done are necessarily incomplete. Bryan Smith, 79, Wyandotte, and Arthur Bushay, nine, Chene street and Trombley avenue this city, grasped dangling wires and were instantly killed. Jake Brodie, of Ypsilanti, ran into alive wire and was killed instantly. J. H. Howell, 60, was killed by lightning while milking at Montrose, near Flint, last night.

NEW MAGAZINE TRUST FORMED

HOWEVER, THIS ISN'T DOMINATED BY THE BIG MONEY INTEREST.

SIX PERIODICALS INCLUDED

BULK OF STOCK IN THEM IS OWNED BY MANY STOCK-HOLDERS.

New York, June 5.—A new combination of magazines, to be known as the Columbian-Sterling Co., is announced. The six magazines included in the deal are Hampton's, the Columbian, the Home, the Sterling, Orff's Farm Review and the American Woman's Review. The first three are published separately in this city; the last three are issued by the Western Magazine Publishing Co. of St. Louis, of which Frank Orff is president.

Orff will be head of the new company which has been incorporated for $4,000,000. Albert Ellory Bergh, managing editor of the Columbian Magazine, will assume the duties of that post with regard to all the publications and Ray Lons, formerly of Cleveland, associate editor of Hampton's, becomes editorial executive of the combination.

There was not as much surprise expressed over the announcement as might have been expected a year ago, for recently it had become more clearly emphasized that the drift in the magazine field was toward amalgamation of interests with the purpose of reducing expenses of production and increasing financial stability.

The magazine publishing business is a complicated one and expensive. While there is said to be no question that talk occasionally heard of a prospective magazine trust, a gigantic organization to include all the periodicals of the country, is far fetched, the tendency is toward amalgamation into fewer companies than now exist. The ostensible reason for the step taken by the publications included in the Columbian-Sterling group was to make common interest on the part of six magazines against other magazine combinations.

"You can fairly call us a trust," said a representative of E. H. Livingston. "We are a people's magazine trust, and we have organized for the purpose of resisting the influence of the magazine trusts which are dominated by the 'interests.' All of the magazines in our group have been organized on the small stockholder theory. That is to say, the stock in one of them is controlled by any one man or small group of men, but by a great many people scattered all over the country."

TRAIN MIDDIES TO FIGHT JAPS

THIS YEAR'S CLASS DRILLED IN MANEUVERS TO STOP INVASION.

MIDDY TELLS INSTRUCTIONS

ACADEMY EXPECTS TO HAVE ITS OFFICERS WELL PREPARED.

Annapolis, Md., June 5.—One of the graduates at the naval academy has let out the secret that during the last year of the course the middies have been trained specially in preparation of a war with Japan. Said this graduate:

"We have been taught what to do in a moment's notice in case of a war with Japan. Of course, some of the papers, and, in fact, the majority of them, did not mention Japan. They said 'An island empire,' or 'An Asiatic nation,' or something like that. We have, in theory, fought the war on both sides of the continent—namely, on both the Pacific and Atlantic oceans."

"It has been determined by the members of the class and by the naval officers instructing us, that in event of our fleets being but a few miles south or north of the Pacific coast, Japan could land a force of men so large as to sufficiently control the entire west coast. It would be almost impossible, after the men had landed, to drive them out with steel and powder. However, as the conditions are at the present time, it would be impossible for the army to stay in this country more than four months. They could get no provisions, and a fleet would keep them from landing stores and munitions of war."

"The west coast is the only logical place where Japan could get an entrance, for in coming any other way their vessels would be detected and stopped. We of this class—and I might as well say that such a thing has never been done before—have had the strength and basis of Japan's resources drummed into our heads until it would be impossible to forget them."

The middy said that the theory fighting was done with the Japanese only. He intimated that the training was given in accordance with orders received from Washington, and it is believed orders for similar instruction were given to the West Point academy. In this connection, the speeches made during the commencement exercise by Assistant Secretary of the Navy Beekman Winthrop are looked upon as significant. He recalled that the United States had been engaged in war at an average of every 29 years, and added, that if the ratio were preserved, the present graduating class would see active service.

BOY THINKS HE IS A BIG DOG

YOUNGSTER REMAINS IN COOP AT NIGHT AND BAYS AT MOON.

Westfield, N. J., June 5.—Receiving a complaint that a watchdog in the back yard of the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. McDonald was making a great deal of noise and barking continually, representatives of the board of health went to the yard today and were astounded to find Ray McDonald, 26, chained in a chicken coop and barking like a dog.

The board of health men questioned young McDonald's parents, and his mother told the following story:

"Our son hasn't been right in his mind for several years. He imagines he is a dog. At first we tried to talk him out of this belief, but he insisted upon it and became disagreeable until we permitted him to remain in the chicken coop."

"He would remain in the coop night and day and bark like a dog on moonlight nights. It certainly was strange. We couldn't understand it at all. Another peculiar thing is that he would insist on having bones to gnaw. We had to sew his clothing on him."

Mrs. Hubbard is the mother of several children, one of whom is married to her late husband's private secretary. She has been prominent for several years in Boston women's organizations. She has appeared in numerous amateur productions with such success that a few weeks ago she was offered the chance to enter upon a professional stage career.

Mrs. Hubbard's husband, before he became mayor of Boston, was this city's postmaster and a close friend of Senators Henry Cabot Lodge and W. Murray Crane.

THIS MAN OUGHT TO MAKE A GOOD AERONAUT

New York, June 5.—Barney O'Hagan is in St. Vincent's hospital with serious injuries, and he does not know for the life of him, how he got them. He is reasonably sure that he fell a part of the way in his sleep. The first he knew of his injuries was when he woke up on the roof of a two story stable several hours after he went to sleep on the roof of his own house next door.

O'Hagan is a hack driver. He found the atmosphere in his flat on the second floor a trifle oppressive, and went up to the roof to pass the night. He was not conscious of any change in his plans until this morning when he awoke to find himself on top of the stable and unable to move.

The fact that he was asleep saved his life, because he fell limp and relaxed and did not get the effect from the contact with the roof that would have come to a man whose muscles were tense.

WANT-PROPERTY BACK.

Benson of this city to regain possession of the property at 111 East Ann street, now occupied by a pool room and commonly known as the headquarters of the Huron club. The responsible tenant is named as Jacob Becks, colored. The membership of the so-called Huron club consists of colored men and the place was formerly located on Detroit street.

GIVES UP WEALTH FOR THE BENEFIT OF JEWS

Los Angeles, Cal., June 5.—With the philanthropic desire to aid Jewish people, Miss Ida Schwab, a wealthy young woman of Cleveland, has established a settlement house here. Every expense is borne by the founder, who is being assisted in her work by 12 teachers.

Miss Schwab has been making her home in Los Angeles with her mother and sister, Miss Irma Schwab, for a year. She says she wants to teach something practical and intends to devote her life to this work.

It was nearly a year ago that Miss Schwab first opened the work here. She calls the movement the Educational alliance.

A handful of children were first brought together. Today there are more than 150 students in the various classes, ranging from little ones in the Sabbath school to grown men and women in the night schools. Classes are held every day. Night school is in session three times a week.

PRAYED FOR HELP BUT NO ONE COULD RESCUE WOMAN

Pittsburg, June 5.—All avenues of escape cut off by flames, Mrs. Mary Riley, 50, stood at the third-floor window of her burning home at 1041 Forbes street Sunday and pleaded with several hundred persons below to save her.

A score of men rushed into the building and tried desperately to reach the unfortunate woman. They were driven back by the flames, many of them badly scorched.

The firemen assisted five other persons to the street, but not before all were nearly suffocated. Looking up, they saw the woman fall upon her knees and pray, but her prayers soon were cut off by a great sheet of flame.

SEES END OF THE WORLD IN YEAR

ST. LOUIS GIRL IN TRANCE PRE- DICTS MANY THINGS.

St. Louis, June 5.—That the world will come to an end within one year and six months is the prophecy of Miss Minnie Sneed, who, with 13-year-old Minnie Sneed, lies in what purports to be a religious ecstasy or trance at No. 2610 Locust street. They are said to have been in that condition nearly a week.

The forecast was given in 50 different languages, according to others of the Pentecostal doctrine who stood about the bed; one of them, they said, being a language never before heard on earth—that in use among the angels. But Eugene M. Aitkens qualified as an interpreter gave out the prophecy thus:

"The Lord will take up His children, upon whom He had set His seal, to the marriage supper before one year and six months are passed.

"And after that will come a period of tribulation for three years and six months, during which there shall be no sun and no night, but the earth shall be lit with God, and the moon shall be blood.

"And a strange people will worship anti-Christ in Jerusalem, and set up a horned beast and worship it, and on the forehead of all who kneel before it shall be set the mark of the beast.

"And whosoever refuses to worship it shall be beheaded.

"But at the end of the reign of the beast all his worshippers shall be driven into a lake of fire, and they shall perish there.

"Then will the Lord return and there shall be Heaven on earth for 1,000 years."

Clarence Emerich, lately a home-shoer, who styles himself "Reverend" by virtue of his leadership of the Pentecostal faith in St. Louis, vouched for the accuracy of this prophecy. He said, in telling of the merits of his creed and in explaining the trance which constitutes baptism into it, that its ministers had the gift, through faith, of healing the sick and raising the dead.

NO PLACE NOW TO HANG FOLKS

LAST OF HISTORIC OAKS SUC- CUMBS TO MARCH OF PROGRESS.

Houston, Tex., June 5.—"Hangman's Grove," one of the historic spots of Houston, has passed. The last giant of a group of oaks which in the pioneer days of Houston provided a natural gallows for the hanging of offensive persons, has succumbed to the march of progress, and "Hangman's Grove" is to become residence property.

By a peculiar coincidence the last tree that this week fell under the axe constituted the gallows for the last hanging on this spot 37 years ago. Its broad hanging limbs ten or 12 feet from the ground were marred by the great grooves in the back into which ropes tied about them had sunk as the limbs grew and widened. The last vestige of this hemp long ago disappeared in the shape of souvenirs, but the marks remain and mutely tell of the gruesome happenings two score years ago.

For years this grove served as a place for the execution of death sentences imposed in the early days of Houston, but no record was ever kept as to the number that swung into eternity from its boughs. The grove was discontinued as a place of execution when public sentiment grew against it because of the immoral effect it was said to have upon the minds of boys who flocked to the place when a hanging was announced.

COULDN'T AGREE ON RECIPROCITY

"Sentiment on reciprocity was divided," said Dr. Mills, president of council who represented the city at the Canadian reciprocity conference at Chicago Saturday.

"So many different interests were represented that unity of opinion was impossible." Taft's speech in favor of reciprocity was a masterpiece of argument. One of his strongest arguments in favor of it was the fact that the addition of more farm land would not necessarily cheapen the price of farm land here, and the opening of the Canadian farms would not necessarily cheapen grain, as was shown when the Dakotas were settled. Rodney Swift, a farmer living just outside of Chicago, predicted that if reciprocity passed within 20 years the hats and ovis would be the only inhabitants of the Chicago business houses.

WON'T DO IT AGAIN.
C. W. Crow, a student living on East Washington street, was arrested for playing ball on the street Saturday. Justice Doty fined him $2 and the costs.

O'REILLY SENTENCED.
New York, June 5.—Daniel O'Reilly, the lawyer convicted of receiving stolen bonds in the Bancroft robbery case, was today sentenced to five months in prison.

DEATH COMES SUDDENLY TO PROMINENT MAN

The sudden death of Horace Dickinson, 68, one of Ypsilanti's well known citizens, occurred Sunday morning at his home, 213 Oak St. The family were preparing to go to church when they called to Mr. Dickinson who was sitting on the porch, that they were ready. Receiving no answer they investigated and found him dead in his chair. Apoplexy is thought to be the immediate cause.

The funeral will be held Tuesday at 3 o'clock, interment at Highland Cemetery.

STORM SWEEPS NORWALK, OHIO

One Man Killed and Three Hurt by Lightning.

LARGE TREES ARE UPROOTED

Roofs Blown from Grandstands in Baseball Park and Spectator Who Took Shelter Under Tree Meets Death.

Norwalk, O., June 5.—One man was killed and three others injured by lightning, small buildings were blown from their foundations, many large trees were uprooted and blown down, together with telephone and telegraph poles all over the city in a storm that swept this city for about an hour.

The storm came up from the northwest at about 1:30 p. m. and within a few minutes the sky was black. Rain which resembled a cloudburst was accompanied by hail and a wind of almost hurricane proportions. The clouds were so low that they appeared to touch the tops of the tallest trees when the storm broke.

A ball game was scheduled on the Milan street diamond. When the storm broke, Frank Van Buren, Fred Studer, members of the Norwalk team, and Albert Stanford and Joseph Lindenberger sought shelter in one of the grandstands. The wind tore the roofs from both stands and the four sought shelter underneath a large tree. Lightning struck the tree, instantly killing Stanford and knocking the others to the ground. Van Buren was unconscious from shock for about two hours, but the other two were soon revived.

ENGINEER SAVES HIS TRAIN

Almost Cooked by Live Steam, He Bravely Stays at Throttle.

Columbus, Ind., June 5.—Passengers on southbound Pennsylvania passenger train No. 18, running from Chicago to Louisville, expect to petition the Carnegie hero commission to grant a medal to John Lawton, engineer. Lawton stayed at the throttle of his engine while live steam poured into the cab and stopped his train. He was taken to his home in Jeffersonville and is in a serious condition.

When near Jonesville a driving rod on one side of the engine broke and battered away the steam pipes. Lawton closed the throttle and set the brakes. The steam continued to pour over him, but he would not jump. Finally he brought the train to a stop and fell to the floor of his cab, with scalds and burns on his face, throat, chest, hands and legs.

TALKS FOR RECIPROCITY

President, in Chicago Speech, Defends His Policy.

Says that Lumber and Print Paper
Dealers Want Tariff to Maintain Present High Prices.

Chicago, June 5.—Chicago's day of open house to the nation's reciprocity missionaries proved a battering-ram against the tariff wall between this country and Canada.

In a powerful arraignment of the "interests" that are opposing the pending treaty with our northern neighbor, President Taft told the members of the Western Economic society that the lumber and print paper dealers were struggling to kill the treaty in order to maintain high prices.

The chief executive's address was delivered in Orchestra hall at the closing session of the convention of the Economic society, and as the climax of a day fairly crammed with activities in the interests of the proposed treaty.

The address proved to be as frank a discussion of national laws in the making as any president ever engaged in with the people. President Taft fairly took his audience into his confidence. He was as unreserved in voicing his theories as to the motives that prompted the opposition to the treaty as those that called forth so many friends for it.

He explained why the treaty was drawn up by the state department without the formality of consulting members of congress, simply because they would have made it the subject of bargaining.

Also he explained, why he had come 1,000 miles away from Washington to talk on the treaty while its fate still was trembling in the balance solely because a strong public sentiment is needed to compel its passage.

Chinese Will Take Part.

Dresden is planning for an exposition devoted to the cause of hygiene, sports and their allied interests. According to advance information this exposition, which hitherto has not been very much talked about, is likely to surprise by its perfection of detail and architectural beauty—as might be expected of Dresden.

That the exposition will be worldwide in its scope is evinced by the fact that the executive committee has just received plans from the Chinese for the erection of an imposing Chinese section. It is proposed to erect a large hall for this purpose, and an imposing pagoda will be erected as a demonstration of Chinese architectural development.

GOOD NEWS FOR CATARRH SUFFERERS

So many hundreds of catarrh victims who have taken the HYOMEI treatment, have written thanking us for publishing our method of taking the HYOMEI vapor treatment in connection with the inhaler that we gladly publish it again.

The vapor treatment is especially recommended in stubborn cases of chronic catarrh of long standing, but remember that the inhaler should be used daily as usual.

This treatment only takes five minutes time before going to bed. Pour a teaspoonful of HYOMEI into a bowl of boiling water, cover head and bowl with towel and breathe for several minutes the vapor that arises.

You will be surprised at the result of this treatment; it makes the head feel fine and clear; you will sleep better, and that stuffed up feeling will gradually disappear.

This method will break up the worst cold in the head in one night.

A bottle of HYOMEI costs 50 cents at Duane Spalsbury's, who guarantees it. Complete outfit, which includes the little pocket inhaler, costs $1.00.

No stomach dosing; just breathe HYOMEI and cure catarrh and all diseases of the breathing organs. Free trial bottle by addressing Booth's Hyomei Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

GOVERNOR AWAY; JAUREZ LID OFF

Abram Gonzales Makes Excursion to Cloud Croft, N. M.

WARNED TO AVOID CHIHUAHUA

Federal Troops Being Withdrawn from Northern Provinces—Repairing of Railroads Going Rapidly On.

El Paso, Tex., June 5.—While Francisco I. Madero was receiving the plaudits of the Mexican people on his way to the Mexican capital, Abram Gonzales, governor of Chihuahua, took a few plaudits himself by accepting an invitation of Americans to make an excursion as their guest to Cloud Croft, N. M., a summer resort near El Paso.

In the absence of the governor, one of the keno games opened in Juarez and an American saloon keeper opened his door every time an American from El Paso tapped three times and showed the proper look of longing in his face. The usual bull fight also took place in Juarez.

Governor Gonzales has received information that it will be best for him not to come to the city of Chihuahua to take charge of his office until all federal troops have been moved south to Mexico City, although the legislature has declared him elected, and he will remain on the border several days.

It is expected to have the National railroad repaired through from El Paso to Mexico City in another day or two, then the troops will be withdrawn from Chihuahua. This will practically rid the states of Sonora, Sinaloa and Chihuahua of federal soldiers, most of whom will be mustered out of the service at Mexico City.

Governor Mayortano reached Her-mosillo and took charge of the state of Sonora, and Manuel Bonilla has been installed as governor of Sinaloa.
Mayortano succeeding General Luis Torres, who is now in Los Angeles, and Bonilla succeeding Diego Redo, reported executed.

Many of the insurrecto generals are to be retained in the service of the Mexican army. General Jose De La Luz Blanco, now in command of Juarez, is to be retained as a general of rurales, and Jose Perfecto Lomeli, who quit a lieutenant-colonelcy in the federal army for an insurrecto general-ship, is to succeed General Torres as military commander of Sonora, and will be made a brigadier in the regular establishment. Pascual Orozco, in command of the insurrecto troops of Chihuahua, is to be made a brigadier in the regular.

Colonel Pancho Villa, a former Chihuahua bandit, is to be made a bandit catcher and given a position as colonel of rurales. The rurales force of Mexico is to be enlarged considerably to make room for many insurrectos, and also because it is believed more men of this character will be needed to pacify the country. The present federal army will be practically wiped out and reorganized, with better pay for officers and men.

Insurrectos who do not wish to remain in the army are being discharged as rapidly as the work can be done.
They are being paid a dollar a day for the time they have served and will each receive a homestead in the reorganization of the landed interests of Mexico that will soon follow. Each man is also to be permitted to take home his rifle and horse, or turn them in for cash, as he chooses, and the government will pay the persons from whom the rifles and horses were originally taken.

HAVANA CHEERS DIAZ

Former President Made to Forget He Is Not Still in Office.

Havana, June 5.—From the time that Diaz came into the harbor until his ship, the Ypirenga, carried him out past Morro Castle again on the final lap of exile to Europe, Havana did all it could to make him forget that he is not still the honored president of a neighboring republic.

When the steamship left its anchorage Diaz and his wife, the latter with her arms filled with rare orchids, stood on the captain's bridge and received farewells from hundreds of loyal Mexicans crowding small craft below.

BUY MEXICAN RAILWAY

National Road Soon to Pass into American Hands.

Monterey, Mex., June 5.—It is reported in financial circles that the control of the National railways of Mexico will soon pass out of the hands of the government and that American interests that are closely identified with the Southern Pacific and the St.
Louis & San Francisco properties are the probable purchasers.

The government merger system, as it is called, embraces more than 7,000 miles of road.

Intense Political Partisanship.

McKinney, Tex., June 5.—In suing his wife for divorce, H. S. Smith, of action that Mrs. Smith is strongly opposed to Senator J. W. Bailey, while he is the senator's supporter.

DETAILS OF DEATH OF DECOU ARE TOLD

PROF. F. W. KELSEY PREPARES AUTHENTIC REPORT FOR MAGAZINE.

WAS SLAIN BY ASSASSINS

HIDDEN ARABS FIRED TWO SHOTS KILLING HIM IN-STANTLY.

The first authentic account of the death of Herbert DeCou, who was shot by an Arab on March 11, this year, while he was excavating in Cyrene will be published in the forthcoming issue of the Bulletin of the Archaeological Institute of America.

This account will be of great interest to Detroit and Ann Arbor people, as well as to archaeologically interested people the United States over, but in Michigan the interest takes a more personal turn, because Mr. DeCou was an old Detroit man, and he also taught at the U. of M. for several years before he resigned to take up this work abroad.

He was excavating under the auspices of the Archaeological Institute of America, and commenced in the latter part of October last. Favorable progression had been made despite the fact that it had been greatly hindered by bad weather, and the inability to find competent workmen.

Prof. Frances Kelsey of the University of Michigan, president of the Archaeological Institute of America, was a personal friend of the dead man and as president of the institute to him was given the task of investigating the death of Mr. DeCou, and publishing his investigation in the Bulletin. Prof. Kelsey will say in part: "The attitude of the natives was at first hostile. They feared that the coming of foreigners would hinder their free access to the spring which supplied water to the ancient city and still flows with a copious stream, and that they would be disturbed in their 'squatters' rights' to land on which excavations were to be conducted. It was also evident that false reports had been spread about the character and purpose of the expedition. Nevertheless, fair dealing and the exercise of forbearance won over the local sheikhs; by the end of February friendly relations had been established with all of them and a satisfactory understanding had been reached in respect to the supply of laborers and their compensation. The attitude of the Ottoman authorities was from the beginning friendly. The resident commissioner sent to represent the government in the inspection of the excavations was courteous and took an interest in the work. Of the guard of Turkish soldiers detailed to protect the staff and the camp, varying in number at times from a dozen to half a hundred, there seemed no occasion to complain, except that they were tardy in going up from camp to the excavations in the morning and were sometimes lax in other matters; the officers were men of good spirit and intentions."

"For several nights Mr. Norton, (the party consisted of the director, Richard Norton, Mr. DeCou, Dr. J. C. Hopkin, C. D. Curtiss, from the School of Classical Studies in Rome, and an English physician, Dr. Sladdin and a servant), had slept but little, because he was taking care of Dr. Sladdin, who was seriously ill with fever. In the evening of March 10th he talked with Mr. DeCou about the work and plans. They agreed that as the staff were new on good terms with the sheikhs of the region, and the problem of labor was rapidly being solved, the work would hereafter go on more smoothly. It was arranged that Mr. Norton should rest next morning, and that Mr. DeCou should start the workmen. The two separated with assurances of mutual esteem and confidence—spontaneous expression of a friendship which began in the school at Athens and had been cemented by years of increasing intimacy."

"Just before 8 o'clock in the morning, Mr. Norton was aroused and informed that shots had been heard in the direction of the Acropolis, above the camp. Proceeding hastily thither he found his friend already dead. Mr. DeCou had started for the place of digging on the Acropolis, the workmen straggling along after him. About half way up the slope he fell, pierced by two bullets fired by Arabs concealed behind a wall barely 70 feet away. The assassins, three in number, mounted horses and rode swiftly inland. Owing to the inaccessibility of the site, arrangements were made for burial near the camp. The rude coffin was wrapped in an American flag; the service was read by Mr. Norton. The grave looks out from the face of the plateau of Cyrene westward, toward the home land."

"The motives for the crime were not personal; the assassins were from a distant tribe. There is reason to suppose that the purpose was to thwart the undertaking by driving the Americans from the country. The Turkish government acted promptly in ordering the arrest of the assassins who according to the latest reports, were still at large. The results of certain investigations must be made before further statement can be made."

"Mr. Norton and his associates showed great courage and steadiness of judgment. Conference was had with the local sheikhs, as well as the military authorities. After full deliberation the staff were unanimous in the decision that the digging should be immediately resumed. From the archaeological point of view, the results of the season's work amply justify the excavation. The Turkish guard was increased, strictly military regulations were enforced and hereafter the danger will be reduced to a minimum."

"Herbert DeCou was born at Good Harbor, in northern Michigan, June 1868, and was taught by his mother till he was 12 years old, when the family moved to Kendall, Mich., and afterward to Detroit. He was graduated from the U. of M. in 1890, and appointed to the Eliza Jones Fellowship. While in the university the following year he did his first piece of archaeological work, the cataloguing of a collection of coins. From the fall of 1890 till he met his death, Mr. DeCou spent the greater part of his time abroad, first as a student upon fellowships at Athens or in Germany, then as secretary and lecturer in the American Schools in Athens and Rome. The year 1899-10 he spent in Munich, working upon collections for James L. Loeb. He was eagerly sought for the staff at Cyrene because of the accuracy of his observation and working methods and range of his knowledge of archaeological detail, in which he was surpassed by no living scholar of his years. His contributions to scholarship were not numerous, but characterized by independence, lucidity and sureness. Best known is his monograph upon the bronzes found in the excavation of the Argive Heraeum; yet unpublished is an extensive manuscript upon the collection from Boscoreale in the Field museum of Chicago, which was prepared when he was last in this country for his health."

In closing his article, Professor Kelsey says: "To most men Mr. DeCou seemed reserved and shy. Only his more intimate friends understood how in his nature serene and exalted scientific ideals were blended with an intense human interest and deep sympathy, so that he entered into the trials of others as if they were his own. He was a man of extraordinary patience, who would hesitate at no sacrifice in order to add the smallest item to the sum of knowledge or to render a service to an associate. Had he lived, scholarship must have reaped a rich harvest from his interpretation of the inscriptions and other finds at Cyrene but at the threshold of largest opportunity he fell—a martyr."

SOUGHT TICKET SECURED WIFE

VISCOUNT FINDS FIANCEE IN BOX OFFICE OF THE-ATER.

Washington, June 5.—Viscount Jean Baptiste De Ventura, a French nobleman and former army officer, strolling along Pennsylvania avenue waiting for the time to arrive when he would keep an engagement with a friend at the capital, decided to while away an hour at a moving picture theater.

He started to purchase a ticket at the first theater on the route, but instead of buying a ticket, he got a wife and hastened to a near-by parsonage. Miss Althea Price was selling tickets at the theater, and she happened to be the same young lady with whom the young Frenchman had plighted his troth months ago, only to lose all track of her when he was called to France to settle up an estate.

Viscount Jean Baptiste came to Washington a year ago, and becoming financially embarrassed, got a job. He happened to get a job where Miss Price had a job already. He soon lost his heart and gave up the job to go home to get some money while he had inherited. He was to return as soon as he got the cash and make Miss Price Viscountess De Ventura.

Months passed. Miss Price moved her boarding house, and when the viscount returned with the cash, he could not locate his fiancée. After months of futile searching, he left Washington and established himself in business in New York. He came here on business, still on the lookout for Miss Price, but little realizing that he would ever have the luck of finding her again.

When the viscount saw Miss Price his hat, arms and voice all went up in the air. As soon as the girl could extricate herself from the crowd and the team of tickets, she became entangled in the viscount's arms and forgot all about business until the manager of the theater hastened to remove her for ruining his show by keeping the crowds watching a show on the outside instead of the inside. The viscount scooped at the manager, and arm in arm, he and the erstwhile ticket seller hurried about to the residence of Rev. William L. Devries. The parson tied the knot and the pair left on a train for New York where they will live.

"Well, I'll be hanged," said the manager of the nickelodeon, "I've only had that girl a week. She gave up $8 a week and got a title."

BIG SWARM OF LOCUSTS ILLUSTRATED HIS SERMON

New York, June 5.—For the text of his sermon Sunday Rev. Dr. Bridges, rector of St. John's Episcopal church, in Montclair, N. J., had announced that he would choose Joel, ch. 25, which, as everybody knows, reads as follows:—

"And I will restore to you the years that the locust hath eaten."

No sooner had the clergyman announced his text than into the church through the open windows flew more locusts than any one present could count. For a few moments there was consternation, especially among the feminine worshippers. Then members of the congregation with an inquisitive turn of mind hurried from the church in time to see boys who should have been at Sunday school hurrying away from the windows. Investigation showed that the boys had gathered the locusts from the trees in the yard of the church and had set them off at the window sills at the psychological moment.

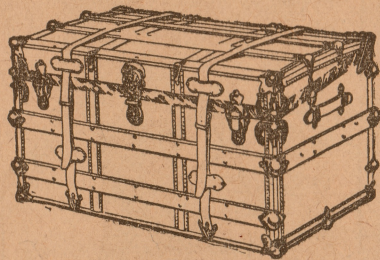

Montclair and the Oranges for several days have been suffering from a visitation of locusts, and the Sunday school pupils had no trouble at all in securing plenty of ammunition.

Chelsea, June 5.—A thunderstorm accompanied by high winds which struck here last night did considerable damage. Trees all over town were blown down and the sign and brick work on the Flanders' Manufacturing company's building No. 8, was wrenched off. YOUNG MEN ARE LEARNING TO COOK

New York, June 5.—Let the bachelor girl take hope. A cooking school for young men has been started by Mrs. C. H. Fleitz in Grace chapel here. There are 16 members of it, and by July 16 young men will be able to broil a steak or roast a piece of beef. It is promised that any of the 16 will be able to bake biscuits that will make mother ashamed of the soggy kind she made.

In the 16 there is the making of 16 happy homes. Sixteen young women with the proper amount of tact will be able to gather them in and, by praising their cooking before and after marriage, will be able to keep them over the kitchen range for the remainder of their lives.

Mrs. Fleitz, who has taught thousands to cook, says she never had a better class, and Dr. C. H. Bettome, vicar of Grace chapel, is enthusiastic. It was his plan. Seventeen were in the class when it started; one fell down at the first lesson. One of them, with one lesson made a pie and carried it home. His mother not only ate it, but lived to ask for the receipt.

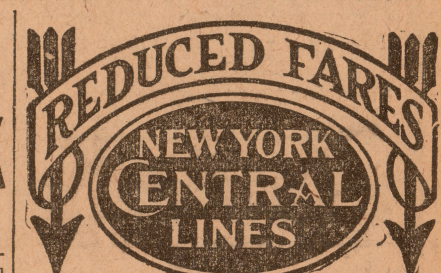

THE QUEEN'S COACHMAN.

There is one person, or rather personage, who will play a very important part in the forthcoming coronation and he is the driver of the state coach. A king's coachman is usually aware of the dignity which surrounds his office. Certainly the coachman to her late majesty Queen Victoria had no mean misgivings on that score. At the 1837 jubilee this functionary was asked if he was driving any of the royal and imperial guests who were at that time quarantined in Buckingham palace.

"No, sir," was the crushing reply. I am the queen's coachman; I don't drive any of the riff-raff."—London Chronicle.

WATER AND SEW-AGE ON THE FARM.

By C. E. MARSHALL,
PROFESSOR OF BACTERIOLOGY OF THE M. A. C.

SUCH a close relation exists between water and sewage on the farm that to consider the one without the other is practically impossible. Contaminating agencies removed, the securing of pure water is a simple matter. Our methods of life, habits and practices, however, make the conditions as we find them, and we are likely to continue under present systems for some time to come. Our hope lies in modification from time to time of the situation as it now exists. The advance of civilization and the progress that we make only emphasize the importance of more sanitary measures. Sewage from the home must be safely disposed of, and the waters must be cared for in such a manner as to eliminate all avenues of contamination to the water supplies.

The Menace.

We labor under the apprehension that the United States ranks among the most civilized countries of the world, yet, measured by the amount of typhoid fever (associated with typhoid fever, other diseases which would increase the number of sufferers from unsanitary conditions three to five fold), our country falls much below first rank. It is true that this standard represents a single denomination. It does measure, however, our ability to care for our water supply and to dispose of sewage in a way to avoid danger. Our appreciation of these matters is growing rapidly, it is true, and the result of education along these lines is gradually working out through cities and towns, where the greatest danger has existed heretofore, to the rural districts where the greatest danger now exists. At the present time, the percentage of typhoid victims and allied diseases is greater in the country districts than in cities and properly-managed towns. The explanation for this may be found in the fact that it is easier to control one water supply for 100,000 inhabitants than to control 20,000 water supplies for the same number of inhabitants.

How Water Is Contaminated.

The accompanying figure illustrates how well water may become contaminated by means of cell pools, vaults, barn yards and other means. This illustration is taken from C. A. Davis' "The Conditions Existing at Oxford, Oakland County, Michigan," published in Water Supply and Irrigation Paper No. 182, United States Geological Survey. (A) represents the house, (1) the house well, (2) the cess pool opened below. Into the cess pool runs a sewerage tile from the house. The soil is of a nature which allows the sewage and wastes from the house to enter and is so porous as to permit the material to find its way to the well in a short time. The well, on the other hand, dips below the ground water level into a coarser stratum of gravel. Some distance below at (b) is the town well. It is only a matter of time when the sewage at (2) will pass to well (1) and from well (1) to well (b). The soil, as a rule, makes a good filter if the stratum is perfect, and if there is no constant impact of sewage against it. On the other hand, if there are imperfections in the soil, as usually exists, and, further, if sewage is allowed to soak constantly into the soil, the filtering action may be regarded as more or less imperfect and dangerous. The organic matter must be destroyed. To be furnished, Air must be allowed to penetrate from time to time, and the organisms which destroy the organic matter must be restored. If the sewage remains on the surface of the ground, and constantly forces its way into the soil, the soil soon loses its power to destroy the organic matter and the organisms which may do mischief. While it is a very slow process for sewage on the surface of the ground, or in a cess pool, or privy vault, to make its way into a well, nevertheless, there have been so many instances of this kind that there can be no doubt about the possibilities of it. This applies also to barnyards and pig pens. It follows, therefore, that the surface of the ground, the surface of the barn yard, should be well drained, and nothing allowed to remain which will in any way contaminate the soil.

Eliminate the Vault and Cess Pool.

These dangerous features should be wholly eliminated and should not be maintained for a minute. The dry-earth closet, and a proper disposition of garbage and refuse from the home will answer all purposes.

Wherever it is possible to install a water system and the septic tank, this is recommended. It can be done at very low cost, and will furnish conveniences enjoyed by our urban neighbors.

ROOTS FOR FARM ANIMALS.

By R. S. SHAW,
DEAN OF THE MICHIGAN AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE.

ROOTS are possessed of a wide range of adaptability, there being no class of animals on the farm but what some sort of roots is suited to their needs. Silage is not possessed of the same range of adaptability, as its general use for the horse, pig and chicken has not yet been established. The exact value of the root crop is not fully understood, but its laxative action on the bowels, the cooling, stimulating and appetizing effects on animals on dry feed in winter are known to be valuable. It is valuable as a preventative of constipation, the forerunner of digestive troubles and other forms of disease.

For the horse the carrot seems best suited to the taste and answers better than any other root. Idle work horses can be wintered well and cheaply on oat straw, bright corn stover and an exceedingly small amount of grain and hay daily, especially when accompanied by regular, but small daily supplies of carrots. No other kind of roots seem to appease the desires of the horse for succulence in the winter season as well as carrot.

Roots are not so essential now for the dairy cow since silage has come into general use, but we still believe there is a place for them in the feed of the dairy herd. It has been found that cows on full feed, using a ration of clover hay, silage and grain, when offered in addition fifteen pounds of sliced mangolds per day, consume them with relish and increase their milk flow. While silage in moderation is a good feed for young heifers and bulls of the dairy breeds, if used too largely it tends toward the production of fat and may be replaced in some measure by roots, which are charged with producing sappy carcasses and large vital organs and viscera, for these are good things to develop in the young animals being grown for the dairy herd.

In feeding beef cattle, roots have undoubtedly been used to an extreme. If used in moderation with this class of animals, the beneficial effects are shown in a smooth, soft, sleek, glossy coat and a mellow, elastic skin, forming a sharp contrast to the dry, harsh coats of the heavily corn fed cattle. Excessive amounts tend to produce growthiness and retards fattening, hence roots in the beef herd are most useful for the young growing and breeding stocks.

Considering all the sorts of roots, they have a wider range of usefulness among sheep than any other class of domestic animals. Sheep will consume all kinds of roots in their natural state. They may furnish the succulence so necessary during the winter season, especially to aid in abundant milk production during the early lambing season before grass is available. Succulent foods tend to promote prolificacy and stimulate wool and meat production as well.

Mangolds, carrots and sugar beets can be used in the raw state for swine, but turnips and rutabagas cannot without cooking, unless the hogs are starved to it. We have come to feel that we cannot handle brood sows, young growing pigs, and even feeders without at least one mangold, carrot or sugar beet per head per day during the winter season when green feed is not available. Cooking is not necessary unless it is desired to mix grain with roots. Frozen roots should not be fed to pigs, as they will produce scours. Those who have used roots in any way for winter feeding seldom give up the practice.

Thus we find that here is an almost unlimited sphere of usefulness for root crops. A more general use of roots for our stock in moderate quantities during the winter season would do much to lessen our bills for veterinary assistance, patent medicines and high-priced condimental feeds.

If fowls or chicks have access to charcoal they will never be troubled with intestinal worms.

Thomas Powers and Mr. Clement who have been attending the Cleary Business College during the past winter, have returned to their home at Hudson for the summer.

A Reader Cures His Constipation—Try it Free

Simple way for any family to retain the good health of all its members

The editors of "Health Hints" and "Questions and Answers" have one question that is put to them more often than any other, and which, strangely enough, they find the most difficult to answer. That is "How can I cure my constipation?"

Dr. Caldwell, an eminent specialist in diseases of the stomach, liver and bowels has looked the whole field over, has practiced the specialty for forty years and is convinced that the ingredients contained in what is called Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin has the best claim to attention from constipated people.

Its success in the cure of stubborn constipation has done much to displace the use of salts, waters, strong cathartics and such things. Syrup Pepsin, by training the stomach and bowels muscles to again do their work naturally, and with its tonic ingredients strengthening the nerves, brings about a lasting cure. Among its strongest supporters are Mr. John Graveline of 98 Milwaukee Ave., Detroit, Mich., Mr. J. A. Vernon of Oklahoma City and thousands of others. It can be obtained at any druggist at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle, or if you want to try it first a free sample bottle can be obtained by writing the doctor.

Dr. Caldwell does not feel that the purchase of his remedy ends his obligation. He has specialized in stomach, liver and bowel diseases for over forty years and will be pleased to give the reader any advice on the subject free of charge. All are welcome to write him. Whether for the medical advice or the free sample address him Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 541 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

HUNT BUFFALO IN AUTOS

Enraged Bison Escaping From James J. Hill's Farm Is Run Down.

The screams of school children barricaded in a district school seven miles from Anoka prevented a charge through a window of the building by the enraged buffalo that escaped from James J. Hill's farm 20 miles away, and gave the clue to the whereabouts of the beast that led to its death, says a Minneapolis dispatch to the New York World.

Reporters ascertained in their chase of the animal that it really was a full-grown American bison. In an automobile the reporters began the hunt for an animal now almost extinct.

Even the skeptical people of the country, who scouted the first reports of farmers, who were terrorized by sight of the beast, are convinced that it really was a buffalo.

Early the countryside was roused and the chase renewed. After an exciting hunt the animal was located in the heavy timber a quarter of a mile from Barney Monlon's place, on the State road. County Attorney H. Pratt and Lee Giddings left the automobile, in which they had been pursuing the beast, and hastily entered the timber tract. On the other side of the woodland Pratt made out the creature dashing through a field of stubble. Though it was a long shot, Pratt fired. This was followed by a volley from Giddings, and together the men hastened in the direction of the clearing. A trail of blood was found, and another glimpse through the farther thickets showed that the animal was hampered in his rapid flight by a slight limp. Later in the day the buffalo was shot and killed by a posse.

THE JOYS OF THE HAIRLESS

Young Man Without Hair Is the Happiest, Declares a Well-Known Doctor.

There is hope and comfort for the bald-headed man. His baldness is not a disfigurement, but a positive charm—to a pretty woman's eyes.

That at least is the theory of a well-known doctor who has had ample opportunities of studying human nature. Just when a man is beginning to notice with anxiety the ever-increasing patch of baldness on his head that appears to be the time when he is entering into the happiest period of his life. For he then stands higher in the opinion of the fair sex than he ever did before. His character undergoes a subtle and indefinable change.

"It is difficult to give an exact reason why the bald-headed man is so well liked by women," he said, "but in my experience the fact is indisputable."

"I am referring, of course, to the man between thirty and fifty-five years of age, who is prematurely bald, not to the elderly bald-headed man."

"For various reasons, either through some malady of the scalp or the constant pressure of a silk hat, a man loses his hair."

"At first he does not notice it, and then, one day, looking in the glass, he is horrified to find he is rapidly growing bald. Almost immediately his outlook on life alters—he becomes more sedate, more trustworthy, as it were."

"An eminent psychologist has said that the external appearance of a man inevitably alters his interior character."

Willing to Please.

"These stocks of yours are worthless," "I don't care," said the woman. "The broker is very accommodating. He has exchanged them four times."

Good News For Catarrh Sufferers

So many hundreds of catarrh victims who have taken the HYOMEL treatment, have written thanking us for publishing our method of taking the HYOMEL vapor treatment in connection with the inhaler that we gladly publish it again.

The vapor treatment is especially recommended in stubborn cases of chronic catarrh of long standing, but remember that the inhaler should be used daily as usual.

This treatment only takes five minutes time before going to bed. Pour a teaspoonful of HYOMEL into a bowl of boiling water, cover head and bowl with towel and breathe for several minutes the vapor that arises.

You will be surprised at the result of this treatment; it makes the head feel fine and clear; you will sleep better, and that stuffed up feeling will gradually disappear.

A bottle of HYOMEL costs 50 cents at Dawson Bros. who guarantee it. Complete outfit, which includes the little pocket inhaler, costs $1.00.

No stomach dosing; just breathe HYOMEL and cure catarrh and all diseases of the breathing organs. Free trial bottle by addressing Booth's Hyomei Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

DIVORCE INSURANCE IS THE LATEST BUSINESS WRINKLE

New York June 5.—Frederick Thompson is to be president of the Divorce Insurance company, unlimited. He said today the corporation papers are being drawn, and within 30 days his new plan will be a reality. He said the company will begin its career with $1,000,000 in the treasury, and would have in its directorate a score of men whose names are familiar from Maine to California.

"It is sure to become the most widely discussed business venture the United States has ever seen, not excepting Standard Oil or Steel," said he. "First, get the title fixed in your mind and then think of life, fire and accident insurance companies. Then the whole scheme of the new corporation must become apparent at a flash.

The prime purpose of the new concern is to alleviate a most deplorable condition for it is deplorable that husbands and wives find it necessary to continue living in wedlock because they have not money enough to live apart. Four-sevenths of the so-called happy marriages would be dissolved over night if the woman had independent means, or if the husband would agree to meet the wife's money demands following divorce.

"The divorce insurance company, unlimited, will fill this. We shall have men and women solicitors, the men to approach the bride-elect, the women to sell policies to the bridegrooms-to-be.

Young Percival Hardup's engagement to Dorothy Spender has been announced. He is in the seventh heaven planning how she will make his ten per cent week expand so they may buy terrapin seven times between pay days. The Divorce Insurance company will see the engagement announced in print. In a day or two one of our women solicitors will call on Percival. She will point out the cold figures first, and the title fixed in your mind and then think of life, fire and accident on his income. As I recall it, this expectancy for ten-dollar-a-week clerks at the age of 21 is a trifle more than eighteen months.

"For a sum as low as 50c a week, he can take out a policy in the divorce insurance company, unlimited, which will protect him absolutely. At any time he wishes to obtain a divorce or faces a suit by his wife, his policy will guarantee traveling expenses to an easy divorce suit, the hiring of efficient counsel and alimony to the victorious party."

Thompson refused to reveal the names of his associates.

STORM SWEEP WASHTENAW

cards, and more than one farmer had a narrow escape from an overturned buggy or a falling tree. The damage done throughout the county must be close to $40,000.

Up at Whitmore Lake one launch was blown away from its moorings and dozens of rowboats swamped. The wind raised waves on the lake that made the landlubbers on shore glad they were on something solid. Frederick Kapp's barn in Northfield on the farm tenanted by his son Emmanuel Kapp was blown to pieces and distributed over the barn yard. One horse was hurt, but so far as Mr. Kapp could tell this morning everything else escaped.

The roof of J. Steffe's barn, Northfield, was blown off, as was also the roof of Martin Kearn's barn in Ann Arbor township. The big barn on former Sheriff Dan Sutton's farm was completely smashed.

On the farm of Frank Kraft, Northfield, a shed was blown down and the siding on one end of the barn was neatly deposited in the middle of the road.

At Dixboro trees along the roads and in the orchards went down like ten pins. On the Rice farm half a mile north of Dixboro two horses and a number of cattle were killed when the barn was blown down. The windmill also went overboard.

On the old Smith farm east of Dixboro a new barn was partly demolished.

County Treasurer and Mrs. Herbert Crippen who went to Dixboro Sunday evening to visit Charles Mead were compelled to remain all night.

Grover Cole of Ypsilanti who was also at Dixboro was compelled to borrow a buggy in which to get home. The wind upset his own and rolled it over and over across the road, but fortunately Mr. Cole was not in the rig at the time. One Dixboro farmer tried to cut across lots when he found the storm coming. He got on top of a fence and a blast of wind hoisted him into the middle of the road. He scrambled up and hit a few of the high spots the rest of the way. Just as he got inside the kitchen the wind blew that down, but he escaped uninjured.

The storm was not confined to the northern part of the county by any means, though the wind damage was not so severe in the south and west. One of the few cases of damage from lightning was reported from York township where S. A. Wilcox's barn was struck and a horse was killed. For the most part the lightning was of the chain variety and the display, especially after the worst of the storm had passed, was one of the most spectacular ever seen.

At times half a dozen flashes whirled across the sky, illuminating the whole heavens. The wind, rather than the electricity, played havoc with the wires of the Eastern Michigan Edison company both here and in Ypsilanti. Wires grounded by falling trees broke many circuits and in Ypsilanti the whole service was completely demolished. The company was unable to supply its patrons with power in that city today and the streets will probably be dark this evening. In this city the street lights were off for probably half an hour during the worst of the storm, but most of them were burning again by the time it ceased. Eastern Michigan Edison company officials declared today that the company would be in shape to furnish power as usual tonight in this city, but they refused to make any promises relative to Ypsilanti.

The telegraph companies were also hard hit by the storm though they were able to transmit messages after a fashion by noon.

Every street in this city this morning was filled with branches, twigs and leaves from trees, and in many places big trees had fallen. Many narrow escapes from injury are reported. The storm came up so rapidly that a great many people were caught away from home without raincoats or umbrellas, and the result was a thorough drenching for a great many.

In the midst of the storm the street lights went out suddenly, and the intense darkness was broken only by the vivid flashes of lightning at frequent intervals. Electric lights all over the city flickered like candles as the wind forced the wires against trees and the current ran down the trees to the ground.

While the storm was the worst that has visited this city in many years, it was also of the longest duration. It lasted almost two hours, and there was scarcely any lull in it. The rain fell in torrents, and the streets were soon flooded, the storm sewers being unable to carry off the water.

Local people who went to Ypsilanti last evening got home at early hours this morning. The D. J. & C. made an effort to keep cars running, but the handicap was a great one. The roof of the barn on the farm of James Steffe on the Pontiac road was blown off and driven through the side of the house into the kitchen. No one was hurt.

Two cows were killed on the farm of Robert Martin near Dixboro when the barn went down.

Half the roof of the barn on Lewis Hagen's place a mile west of Dixboro was blown off and the barn of Frank Gale of Superior township was blown down. On the Crippen farm, now owned by a Mr. Meyers, the barn was smashed. On the Bennett farm, two miles north of Ypsilanti, now owned by Henry Klapp, the barn was comparatively new. The wind flattened it out as though it had been there 50 years. On the Thompson place, four miles northwest of Ypsilanti, there are 20 acres of timber. Hundreds of these trees were blown down.

Associated Press dispatches usually received here before noon did not arrive before one o'clock. All the electric companies had men working on their wires from midnight on.

The rainfall for the 24 hours preceding 7 o'clock this morning amounted to 1.2 inches according to Prof. W. J. Hussey, director of the observatory. For a while during the storm it was almost impossible to see across the street. Hall fell for about ten minutes in Northfield, but in this city the fall was hesitating and did not last more than a minute or two. It is impossible to estimate the damage to the fruit crop throughout the county resulting from the high wind. Many old orchards have been badly hit and in some places there is hardly a tree that has not lost a limb or more.

The barn of Thomas O'Brien, Northfield, was moved off its foundation. John Quackenbush's barn, Northfield, was blown down and the barn of Thos. Coyle, Northfield, was also blown over. A silo on the farm of Fred Haas was carried around the barn and dropped in the yard.

In Ypsilanti several of the streets were still practically impassable for fallen trees at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Out in Webster barns were blown down on the Ludwig estate and the Shanahan farm. The barn on Chris Sell's farm was moved off its foundations. On the Pontiac road the barn on the farm of Jess Steffe was blown down.

FARMERS SUFFERED DAMAGES

Reports from various parts of the county indicate that the farmers suffered severely in last night's storm. Barns were blown down or unroofed, stock was killed and silos and windmills leveled to the ground. Charles Brown, a farmer living on the Whitmore Lake road suffered severely, one of his orchards being practically destroyed. On the Taylor farm two silos were blown down and a windmill destroyed. At the farm of Patrick McIntyre on the Pontiac road a windmill was destroyed and some sheds blown down.

worth of damages. His big barn was leveled to the ground and 25 trees in his fine apple orchard were pulled up by the roots or broken off. His orchard consisted of 50 trees and the remainder were badly damaged and many limbs twisted off. Mr. Skarritt had five horses in the barn but they were uninjured. His corn crib was also leveled to the ground.

"I saw the storm coming up," said Mr. Skarritt, "and from the fact that it rolled up directly against the wind I judged that it was going to be a hard one. The wind that struck my place came from a cloud which had the regulation funnel shape. Two storms seemed to roll up from different directions and meet."

The barns on the Stephen farm at Goldrick were unroofed and considerable damage done.

John and Carrie Nanry, son and daughter of William Nanry, of Northfield had a novel experience, from which they escaped without serious damage or injury. They were driving home from Ann Arbor when the storm struck them and reached its full fury before they could get to any shelter. The wind picked the horse and buggy up as though it had been a toy and deposited it in a fence corner. It was sometime before they could get the frightened horse into the road and proceed on their way. Mr. Nanry's house was badly shaken and a chimney blown down.

At Rev. Fr. Goldrick's the roof was blown off the barn and the house was struck by lightning. The damage will amount to several hundred dollars, it is thought.

Northfield township was apparently in the direct path of the storm, and it is said that there are acres of timber blown down.

The roof on Dave Meyer's barn at Manchester was blown off, and the roof is also off William Hallen's barn in Northfield. At Whitmore Lake the damage was very great. Frank Lemmon, who lives northeast of Whitmore, had his barn unroofed and some other damage done about the place.

No trains on the Michigan Central road were dispatched at the local dispatcher's office today because of the fact that there was no wire connection, either telegraph or telephone. Poles were blown down near Wayne and Chelsea putting the telegraph system out of commission. Freight trains out of Ann Arbor were sent out with instructions to take switches and wait for passenger trains. It is expected that before the day is over the telegraph system will again be in working order.

TELEPHONE CO'S. LOSS IS GREAT

Manager Chester Given of the Michigan State Telephone company, made a trip this morning in an automobile through most of the country traversed by the storm. He found innumerable orchards uprooted or the trees snapped off. Most of the damage done in Saline, Manchester, Milan, Willis and Tecumseh was caused by falling trees. Barns were either blown off their foundations or rolled over. Very few houses were damaged. The storm was about as bad in Adrian as it was here. The Adrian manager endeavored to get a crew from Ann Arbor to help him out, but owing to the amount of work here he was unable to get it. A large crew from Detroit, following the path of the storm, is now working in Ypsilanti. While waiting for these men to arrive Manager Given and his men are going over the ground, placing the materials needed for the repairs.

WIRE COMPANIES SUFFER DAMAGES FROM WIND

The storm last night caused the Michigan State Telephone approximately $300,000 damage in this state. In Ann Arbor alone there are 700 phones out of order. One of these is the one connected with the pumping station of the water company. In case of fire this would greatly handicap the fire department on account of the pressure and inability to notify the pumping station. Out of 21 long distance lines running out of Ann Arbor the only one in commission is the line to Adrian. Falling trees tore the wires down between here and Whitmore Lake. Manager C. J. Given this morning secured an automobile to travel over the whole district and ascertain the extent of the damage.

The Home Telephone company suffered only slight damage locally, only 25 phones being put out of order in the city and eight in Dexter. The amount of damage done to the toll lines is still unknown, but Manager Hall said it would probably be very slight. Both companies say the greatest damage was done at Ypsilanti where the storm snapped off poles and blew trees across the wires.

At a banquet Saturday night of the Craftsmen of the University, a university club of Free Masons, George R. Green, of Ironva, Pa., was presented with a silver loving cup in recognition of his services as president of Acacia, fraternity, the Masonic fraternity and secretary of the local organization. HAS BLOOD POISONING.

William Goss, employed at the Ann Arbor garage as a repair man, is suffering with blood poisoning. He scratched himself on a piece of steel, and later in cranking a machine which back fired, bruised his arm. In rubbing the arm he got some dirt in the wound which caused the poisoning.
